Readers Theatre

Frisky: Watch where you're going! You nudged me!

Frosty: I'm sorry. I was trying to get to the restaurant before it closed.

Frisky: That's no reason to be chugging through here.

Frosty: You don't have to be so stern.

Frisky: Now, you're being selfish about feelings.

Frosty: What are you talking about? I said, "Sorry."

Frisky: This is not an ordinary situation. I'm hungry.

Frosty: You're not my enemy, you can come with me.

Frisky: Well, I don't know. Coax me into coming.

Frosty: Are you kidding. What do you want, a hug?

Frisky: What's wrong with that?

Frosty: I'm not a hugging type of person. Do you want to come or not?

Frisky: I guess it's better than hanging around here.

Frosty: Let's go. It's nice of you to treat me for lunch.

Frisky: What do you mean? You were going to eat anyway.

Frosty: Remember, the last time we went out, you said you'd treat.

Frisky: I forgot all about that.

Frosty: I hope you have enough money. I'm starved.

Frisky: All this because I got nudged.

Frosty: You were in the wrong place at the wrong time.
