Readers Theatre

Zam: I leaving to join the circus.

Max: That sounds marvelous! I'm coming too.

Zam: Should we take our giraffe with us?

Max: We don't have a giraffe.

Zam: Then they won't let us in the circus.

Max: We could bring them some fudge.

Zam: I judge that to be a magnificent idea.

Max: How will we get there? Surf?

Zam: We're not near the ocean. We'll walk.

Max: I think we should start an act for the circus.

Zam: Let's be human darts.

Max: Cool! It would not only be exciting, but we would be a work of art.

Zam: O.K. You practice first in the yard.

Max: How do I fly through the air?

Zam: I'll dangle you by your feet and then you swing.

Max: This doesn't sound like such a good idea.

Zam: You're just scared.

Max: Why don't you do it?

Zam: I don't have to. It was my idea.

Max: You can join the circus with your idea, and I'll eat the fudge instead!
