Paragraph

Favorite Fairy Tales retold by Virginia Haviland (con't)

What a surprise the poor junk dealer received when he reached home after his day's work! Deep down in his junk basket he found a beautiful teakettle. He decided to take it to a certain temple priest who had always been very kind to him. He knew that the priest would want to buy such an unusual kettle.

Early the next morning, the junkman carried his treasure to the temple. As he expected, the priest was greatly pleased with the shining teakettle. The priest paid him three whole ryo, a far greater amount of money than the junkman could ever have dreamed of getting.
