Frederick: What's wrong? You seem down.

Douglass: This horrible person was indignantly yelling at me.

Frederick: Did you tell him to stop?

Douglass: Yes, I asserted that he should not raise his voice to me.

Frederick: Was he sympathetic to the way you felt? Did he stop?

Douglass: No, he just said that was how he always spoke.

Frederick: It has nothing to do with you. It has more to do with his inner misery.

Douglass: I'm glad I'm talking to you. You have a way of consoling me.

Frederick: Remember how the people treated the abolitionists? All they wanted to do was to end slavery.

Douglass: That person made me feel like a fugitive. I didn't exactly suffer, but I wasn't happy.

Frederick: I'm glad we're having this conversation.

Douglass: Do you want to grab a bite to eat?

Frederick: I'm not too hungry right now. It was pretty traumatic.

Douglass: I can vouch for that.

Frederick: Let's just go for a walk along the beach.

Douglass: Excellent idea. Let's make the most of our day.
